

Governing SDGs: From Universal Agenda to Local Action

---

Special issue call for papers from Corporate Governance

Guest Editors

Esben Rahbek Gjerdrum Pedersen (ergp.msc@cbs.dk), Copenhagen Business School

Manuela Brusoni, (manuela.brusoni@unibocconi.it), Bocconi University

Joan Fontrodona, (JFontrodona@iese.edu), IESE Business School

Ivo Matser (ivomat@ism.lt), ISM

Alfons Sauquet (alfons.sauquet@esade.edu), ESADE

Introduction

The 17 UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and 169 associated targets were launched by the United Nations in 2015 as a global 2030 agenda for sustainable development, which is intended to bring prosperity to the world while protecting the planet. The SDGs build on the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) and set an ambitious plan of action for the next 15 years, which ultimately requires commitment from all stakeholders in all countries across the world. Private businesses are also expected to play an active role in this process by using: “(...) their creativity and innovation to solving sustainable development challenges” (UN, 2015).

Implementing the SDGs is not an easy endeavour. For instance, different countries, sectors, and organisations have various resources and interests, which all affect their work with the SDGs. Moreover, the broad formulation of SDGs can give rise to a variety of interpretations and behaviours, which are likely to affect the impacts (social, environmental, and economic). Therefore, especially in first years we are likely to witness an element of heterogeneity in the implementation of the SDGs across the globe.

The objective of this Special Issue is to explore the various manifestations and usages of SDGs across organisations, sectors, and national borders. As seen from Table 1, SDGs can be addressed from a number of different perspectives, ranging from the negotiations leading up to the formulation of the global themes to the individual sensemaking and sensegiving processes at the local level. In particular, we welcome contributions cutting across levels (micro, meso, macro) and/or perspectives (governance making, taking and breaking), as academic research is often biased towards one-level/one-perspective analyses of organizational phenomena.

Perspective Level	Governance Making (Production of SDGs)	Governance Taking (Adoption of SDGs)	Governance –Breaking (Circumventing SDGs)
Societal level (Macro)	Example: How issues and actors are selected in and selected out in the development of the SDGs.	Example: How SDGs are translated into national action plans, policies, and strategies.	Example: How groups of actors obstruct the development and implementation of the SDGs.
Organisational level (Meso)	Example: How organisations make local adaptations of the SDGs.	Example: How governance frameworks, templates and tools influence the use of SDGs.	Example: How aspirational talk, greenwashing, and ‘bullshit’ are used to oversell commitment to SDGs.
Individual level (Micro)	Example: How individual actors use SDGs as an influence tactic to promote sustainability within the organisation.	Example: How the implementation of SDGs influence individual values, attitudes, and behaviour.	Example: How individuals exploit loopholes in the SDGs.

Source: Based on Rasche et al. (2016)

Possible topics include (but are not limited to):

- How are SDGs translated in sectors and geographical contexts?
- How do organisations manage and control the implementation of SDGs?
- What types of competences and knowledge are brought into play for making SDGs operable?
- How do organisations manage paradoxes, dilemmas, and conflicts emerging from the work with SDGs?
- How are SDGs translated into management education and training?
- How are SDGs aligned with predominant organizational cultures and institutional logics?
- What governance mechanisms are necessary to implement SDGs within the organisation?
- How do individual, organisational, and institutional factors influence the operationalization of SDGs?
- How can business partners, public authorities, and non-profit organisations be involved in the work with SDGs?
- How do the public perceive the fit between SDG commitments and current business practices?
- To what extent does SDGs inspire a homogenization of the sustainability field?
- How can technologies and tools influence the work with SDGs?
- What are the impacts from the implementation of SDGs?

Types of Submission

We welcome high-quality submissions which advance our knowledge on relevant topics related to SDGs. The special issue does not favour any special theoretical perspectives or methodological approaches and is open to conceptual as well as empirical contributions.

Submission process

The special issue is coordinated with the ABIS Annual Colloquium, which took place in Brussels on November 15 -16th 2017. A collection of papers will be published in a special issue of Corporate Governance: The international journal of business in society. The selection process will consider both the academic quality of the paper as well as the proximity to the general theme of the Colloquium.

For more information about the ABIS Colloquium, see: <https://www.abis-global.org/events/16th-abis-annual-colloquium-2017>

However, your research does not have to be presented at the ABIS Colloquium to be eligible for consideration for the special issue.

General author guidelines can be found at:

http://www.emeraldgrouppublishing.com/products/journals/author\_guidelines.htm?id=cg.

Final paper submissions should be made via Corporate Governance ScholarOne submission and peer-review platform, making sure to choose the correct Special Issue when submitting: <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/cg>.

Deadlines

- January 14, 2018: Deadline for submission of full papers to this special issue.

Directions and further information

- Please send your proposals to: contributions@abis-global.org
- We suggest using the Harvard style guidelines of the for paper style and references.

For any question related to the Call for Papers, please contact us via: contributions@abis-global.org

ABIS, a unique Business-Academic impact-driven platform, working to implement the SDGs

More info at : abis-global.org

@abisglobal